25X1A6a The question of devising the simplest system of dispatching large amounts of bulky, sensitive material from the [REDACTED] Station has been the subject of continued discussion with FI/D, which in turn has consulted [REDACTED] To date, we have instituted measures which have cut down some 45% of time and effort in this procedure. Further improve-
[REDACTED]
as to this means of transmission. This problem will be further explored and every effort made to find a simpler and more efficient method of transmitting this material to Headquarters. As this problem is not unique to [REDACTED] it is being worked on by Agency specialists.
